

THE CONTEMPORARY CLUB OF CHARLOTTESVILLE/ALBEMARLE WELCOMES
THE CLASS OF 2018-2019

SARAH BRIDENHAGEN

I originally moved to Charlottesville for a graduate program in counseling at the Curry School of Education at UVA where I met my late husband, Marc (grad of Darden). After living in Roanoke, Richmond and Atlanta, we returned to Charlottesville in 1993. I have two daughters, Amanda of Denver, and Sarah Frances of Charlottesville. Retired from teaching in elementary schools, I now spend time gardening, reading, playing bridge, volunteering in the community, and traveling. As a member of the Albemarle Garden Club, I am most interested in advocating for conservation and environmental issues, at all levels and I serve as a Trustee on the board of the Jefferson Trust at UVA.

JULIE DUDLEY

A native of Atlanta, I moved to Virginia in 1980 and spent 26 years in Alexandria and Washington, D.C., where I worked on Capitol Hill and for various companies and non-profits before having children. My husband, Beau, I and our children, Thomas (24, in NY) and Page (22, in Nashville) moved to Charlottesville in 2006. I enjoy volunteering, playing golf and paddle tennis, exercising, traveling, entertaining, real estate investment, and gardening. We are members of St. Paul's Ivy and I have been active in several Bible studies in DC and locally, and numerous clubs and volunteer jobs – most recently as secretary for the Farmington Property Owners Association.

DEIDRA JANE MASSIE

A native Washingtonian, I am a city girl at heart. I attended the University of Virginia, have deep family roots in Charlottesville, recognized it as a great place to raise a family and never left. My greatest joys are my two amazing teenage sons, Makena 17 and Kalani 14. Being a mom is what I live for. I also enjoy gardening, exercise, sports and yoga. Being in nature is my zen place. I have also enjoyed a career of over 25 years in Sales & Marketing. What I treasure most are relationships and serving others. I especially enjoy seniors and all the wisdom and wealth they possess. It takes a village is the mantra I live by!

ANGIE OAKEY

A graduate of the University of Virginia, I have lived in Charlottesville, with my husband Dan, for nearly twenty years. Active in the community, I am also a mother to three children.

Beyond my local community volunteerism, I, along with Dan, remain steadfast in our dedication to food-allergy and asthma research, advocacy, and education.

TELLER STALFORT

As a graduate of UVA, with a Masters from UNC, and as a registered dietitian nutritionist, I have been blessed to pursue my passion of preventing chronic disease through healthy lifestyle changes, most recently at the UVA Heart and Vascular Center. Since leaving UVA in 2013 to raise my children, I developed a new passion: encouraging and supporting children with special needs and their families, and am pleased to serve on the Board of Trustees at the Elk Hill School. My husband, Jay, and I are the parents of two children, Noah age 10 and Kate age 8. I am an active member and deacon of First Presbyterian Church. I take great pleasure in being involved in my children's activities and try to find time for exercise – indoors and out.

SALLY WELDON

As a child, I spent time at our family farm in Charlottesville and always knew I would like to return. Having graduated from Dartmouth, studying in London at Sotheby's and moving to New York, I worked in marketing, dabbling in art. Moving to Bigfork, Montana, I worked production for a very successful photographer until I was offered the directorship of our local art center. After my daughter was born, I split my time between my family's business in Missouri and volunteering in Isabel's school and for endless community projects. Since my return to Charlottesville I have volunteered at the Wildlife Center and have enjoyed pursuing my interest in photography, painting, traveling and taking long walks with my dog.

ELLIE WILSON

A native of Boston and graduate of Brown and Harvard, I began my professional life as an educator. In 1964, Guy Wilson and I married and now have 2 grown daughters with their own families. After teaching in elementary education, then receiving my PhD in Social Foundations of Education from UVA, I have been on the Teacher Education and Curriculum faculty in the Curry School. My scholarship includes the history of the Curry School (The Curry School of Education at the University of Virginia, 1905-2005) and also examining effective practices in field placements for preservice students. My personal passion is music and playing the violin in as many amateur orchestras that would have me.
